Health Care

The City of Parramatta employs over 176,000 people, with Health Care being the largest employer in the City, generating 26,716 local jobs in 2017/18. It is also the 8th largest industry by output in the City of Parramatta having generated $2.37 billion in 2017/18¹.

Employment (total) by Industry 2017/18¹

This significant growth within City of Parramatta is primarily driven by the Westmead Health Precinct which houses Australia's largest concentration of health, education and research facilities. Westmead is also one of Australia's largest health services precinct which provides services for 10% of Australia's population.

The precinct offers:

- + a world-class integrated tertiary clinical core;
- + an innovation, education and research network;
- + hundreds of private health businesses that are globally connected;
- + Children's Medical Research Institute²; and
- + Westmead Institute for Medical Research.

Total Change in Employment Over 10 Years¹

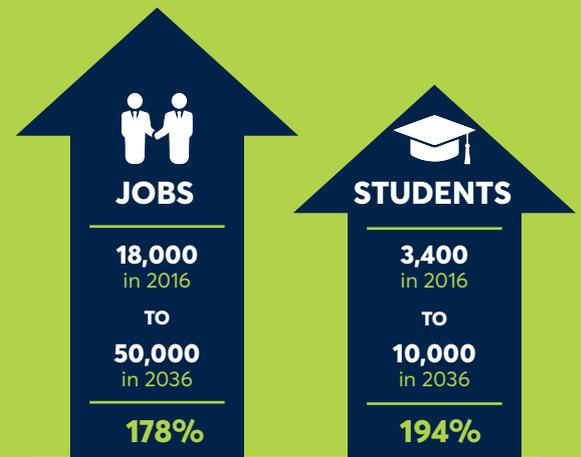

Health Care has had the largest employment growth among all other industries in Parramatta. The majority of this growth can be attributed to investment in the Westmead Health Precinct, with more than $3.4 billion² being committed by the NSW Government, universities and the private sector to upgrade and expand the health services, medical research facilities, education services and public transport infrastructure in Westmead.

Future Growth of the Industry

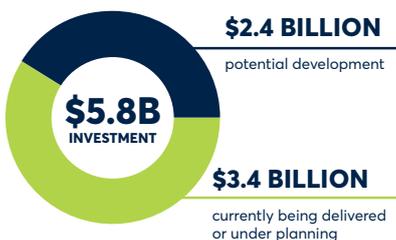

Westmead Innovation Precinct

The industry is set to continue to grow significantly due to investment in the Westmead Health Precinct, with estimates that it will see a significant 178% increase from 18,000 jobs in 2016 to 50,000 full-time staff in 2036. Deloitte Access Economics projects that the increase in employment by 2036 will deliver $2.8 billion of additional economic output per annum. The Westmead Health Precinct currently provides education to 3,400 students and is predicted to rise to 10,000 students by 2036². A masterplan is being undertaken to guide this and future investment in the precinct.

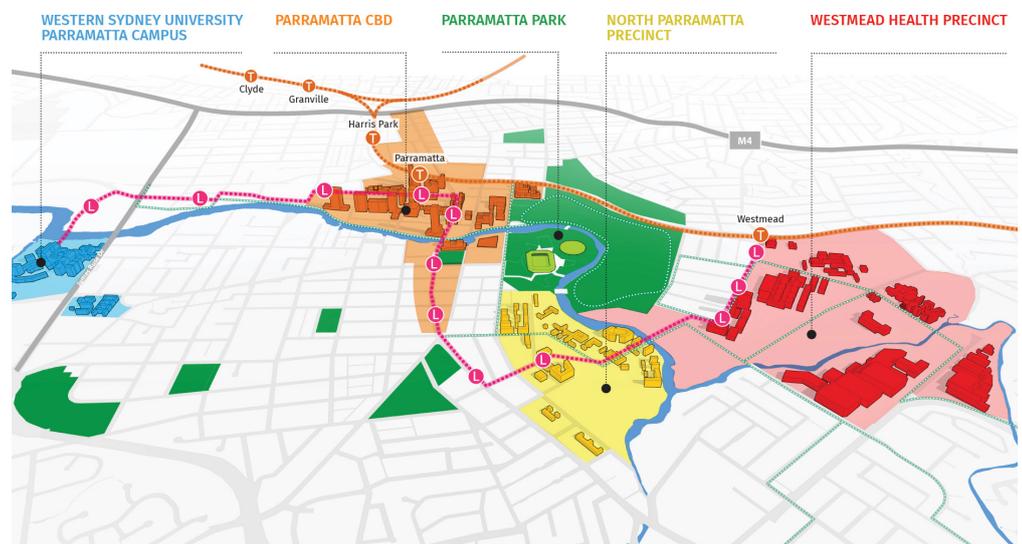

Projects Shaping Westmead

A total of $5.8 billion of investment is under various stages of delivery, planning, or has potential to be delivered as part of plans for Westmead over the next decade². This includes;
